TYLER PITCHES FOR BRAVES

ALLIES GAIN IN BIG BATTLE

24 ANTWERP FORTS HOLDING, PARIS REPORT

Successes for the allies are announced in the French official report of war operations issued at Paris at 3 p. m. today.

Attacks made by the German troops on the French left wing of the great battle line between Lassigny and Repe have been repulsed, according to the statement. It states that the allies have also made progress on the right bank of the Aisne before

THOUSANDS ARE 'FLAGGED' TO AID RED CROSS FUND

Thousands of people were "flagged" this afternoon by 200 or more young women. It was Red Cross day, and the young women volunteers sold Red Cross flags to men, women and children en masse on the Common.

It was a part of the Columbus Day celebration, the committee in charge for the day and Mayor Curley having given the Red Cross permission to raise money for the war relief fund on the Common.

The young women were all volunteer workers. While they were selling the flags, Stewart's Boston band gave a special Red Cross concert on the Common.

Among the workers were a hundred nurses from the Boston hospital.

'I Am God's Sword, His Representative,' Kaiser Is Quoted

PARIS, Oct. 12.—La Liberté states that according to French newspapers the Kaiser has issued the following proclamation to his eastern army:

Remember, you are the elect. The Holy Spirit has descended on me because I am Emperor of Germany. I am the instrument of God. I am His Sword, His Representative.

We and death to those who resist me with sword and gun. I demand their destruction. That God, who through me, commands you to follow His will!

Flurence Browne, Reported Missing, Writes to Mother

Mrs. George H. Browne of No. 1 James street declared today that her daughter, Florence, the former Wallis student, who was reported missing by her family in New York, has returned to her room at No. 249 West Forty-fifth street, New York.

"We have just received a letter from Florence," said the mother, "and she is well and happy. She is now in New York, and when she next comes to Boston, she will immediately report her return to the police. Florence has not heard from her mother, never looked more lovely, her friends declare."

DIAMOND FOR STALLINGS.

The royal football team started from the corner of Brookline and Commonwealth avenues at 12:45 for the grounds, where they presented Manager Stallings with a diamond pin.

Both Lynn Football Teams Win Contests

The Lynn English and Classical High schools' football teams each won a 20 to 0 victory in a grueling double-header at Ocean Park, Lynn, today, with Cape streeting English High defeated Marlborough High 20 to 0 and Classical High defeated Newburyport High by the same score.

'Skip' Tunney, Noted Maine Guide, Dead

S. G. "Skip" Tunney, the Washington, Maine, guide and sportsman, died at his home in Princeton, Me., of tuberculosis. "Skip" was known throughout Maine as one of the best guides in the hunting and fishing regions and had piloted some famous gunners through the backwoods.

BRACK PICKS DUFFY TO WIN; 35,000 ROOT FOR BOSTON

It was Lefty Tyler who carried Boston's hopes when the third World's Series game got under way at Fenway Park at 2 today.

Connie Mack sent in Bush, the hero of last year's series against the Giants; counting upon Bender and Plank for tomorrow and Wednesday if the Athletics can pull their chestnuts out of the fire.

All the Braves' pitchers warmed up before the game for a few moments, then Rudolph and Crutcher kept it alone while Tyler went back to the dugout for a last talk with Stallings.

PERFECT WORLD'S SERIES WEATHER

It was perfect World's Series weather, warm enough for the spectators basked tier on tier clear around the field, and cool enough for the players.

Half an hour before the game every seat was filled except the stands on Duffy's Cliff reserved for the Royal Rooters. When they swung into sight a mighty cheer went up. Former Mayor Fitzgerald led the line in frock coat and silk hat.

They marched to the Braves' bench for a cheer, then to the Athletics' dugout for another, then out across the field to their section. There were many girls in the line, fitted out in Braves regalia.

Before the game, Captain Johnny Evers was presented with an automobile as the most valuable player in the National League. Then the game was on.

Mitchell's Sidelines on the Game

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

In the meantime the Braves came out on the field again and took their final position. At 1:15 "mitten" Dick Rudolph, the hero of Friday's victory, began warming up to "Moose" Whitted. Dick Crutcher also warmed up at the same time. On the Philadelphia side Connie Mack had several of his best men warming up, being evidently undecided which man to select.

At 1:20 former Mayor Fitzgerald, escorted by a massive blue-coated minion of the law, walked from the Royal Rooters' stand across the field to the Boston dugout. "Big Chief" Stallings was dressed in a "Hill-dog" suit and the Boston players gathered around him. Mr. Fitzgerald made a speech and handed Stallings something it could not be what it was from the press box, but it was said to be a diamond pin.

Then Mayor Curley climbed on the bases dugout and spoke in a stentorian voice. After his remarks he shook hands with a "Hill-dog" golden ball. The crowd cheered. The umpire appeared. It was near game time.

The peppy photos delayed the game.

Detailed Story of the Game

FIRST INNING.

Athletics—Tyler put the first ball over, but it was high and it was called a ball. The next went over for a strike. Murphy sent a ball back for a double, easily beating Connolly's throw. Offspring started the first ball pitched. Tyler felled it in splendid shape and would have easily had had Murphy at third had not been driven in. He threw the batter out at first. With the count on him one and one, Collins hit a liner to left. Connolly should have had the ball, but in his hurry to get off a strike he dropped it. Connolly struck Baker out on four pitched balls after making half a dozen useless attempts to get Collins off first. Two of the strikes were called, but Baker was the third one. Tyler gave McInnis two balls, put over a strike and then pitched another wide one. Collins stole second on the last pitch, delivery a throw to Evers went wild. McInnis was walked on the next one, Tyler whiffed and shot the ball to Evers, who caught Collins flat-footed off second and tagged him out. ONE RUN, ONE HIT, ONE ERROR.

Braves—Bush was very wild starting off and gave Moran three bad balls. He then hit over two strikes. Moran kicking a bit on the second one. After fouling off four, Moran finally lifted a soft pop to Eddie Collins. Johnny Evers was given a great hand as he came to bat. He hit the first one a fast ball on the inside, gave a ball for a strike. The next was a ball, a curve which did not break in far enough. Johnny smashed the next pitch over Barry's head to left for a clean single. After one strike had been called on him, and then a ball, Connolly hit one toward first that drew a cheer from the bleachers. But it was lost by several yards. The next pitch was wild and nearly broke away from Schang. One, Connolly got up a foul ball. Baker pulled in right in front of the catcher's head. Whitted let a ball go by, and then seeing at one to cover Evers' sliding, Connolly threw a ball. Another ball and a couple of fouls and another ball was whiffed straight out. Bush threw twenty-two balls before entering the side. NO RUNS, ONE HIT, NO ERRORS.

Fans Break Down Fence in Mad Rush

A crowd of fans in the sliverway leading toward the dollar seats in far rightfield at Fenway Park surged too heavily against the fence, at which they were rushing for their seats today, and the fence gave way. The fans made a rush for Duffy's Cliff, but the mounted police drove them back and the fence was propped up.

BRAVES-ATHLETICS GAME

SECOND—Walsh out, Tyler to Schmidt. Barry out on a foul to Schmidt. Schang fled to Evers. NO RUNS.

Schmitt fanned. Bush out on a fly to Baker. Maranville walked, stole second and scored on Connolly's double in the left field bleachers. Tyler out at first. ONE RUN.

THIRD—Bush out on a foul to Schmidt. Murphy out. Evers to Schmidt. Offspring at first. NO RUNS.

Athletics—Schmitt—1 0 0
Braves—Schmitt—0 1 0
Bush and Schang; Tyler and Gowdy.

MONTENEGRO'S ATTACK AUSTRIAN CITY.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—A Central News dispatch from Rome says that the Montenegrins are attacking Rijeka, an Austrian city of Dalmatia, and that its fate is uncertain.

BRAVES ARE 10 TO 7 BETTING FAVORITES TO WIN SERIES

Betting in Boston today rules at odds of 10 to 7 in favor of the Braves to win the series with the Athletics. For today's game some wagers are being made at even money, but in the majority of cases, around the big hotels, the Braves are made the favorites for their third straight win.

FANS OF BOTH SEXES—BRAVES ROOTERS ALL LINED UP TO RUSH SEATS

OVER 35,000 JAMMED IN FENWAY PARK TO ROOT FOR THE BRAVES

By NICK FLATLEY.

FENWAY PARK, Oct. 12.—More than 35,000 "fans" jammed Fenway Park to its greatest capacity today when Stallings' fighting team and the Athletics clashed in the third game of the World's Series. The Braves entered the game a determined band of athletes and each of them was confident that the famous Mack machine would receive another crushing setback this afternoon.

Enthusiasm was rampant among the vast throng who was on hand to see the battle when the umpire yelled "Play Ball." It was a big, happy holiday crowd and almost everybody present was pulling for Stallings' men to grab off the high honors.

22,000 FANS IN BLEACHERS.

Twenty-two thousand wildly happy "fans" sat in the bleachers three hours before the game began and cheered and jostled and sang in undiluted delight. Twice as many others were massed outside the great fence, looking sadly at the crowd and staying as near the park as the army of police would permit, to get slight solace listening to the roars that wafted out over the fence. Some seventeen thousand had paid a dollar each, while the other five were here in our midst for half that sum.

Every seat in the stands was taken, the temporary boxlike benches along the fence in front jammed, and a mob that filled every nook and corner packed like sardines into the small open space out in the far centre-field corner. The tall white flagpole stretched up out of the sea of heads like a lone bamboo tree in a pictured growing out of some of those long-named tropical plants.

CORDON AROUND OUTFIELD.

A squadron, or a platoon, of what ever a body of mounted police is called, galloped around the outfield and kept in bounds the enthusiasm of the joyous front row "fans." Peanut and popcorn vendors in long-wind-upped wheels, pushed, paraded up and down in front making the crowd roar with their shouts and shouting back their goods with unerring accuracy. While the "fans" bowed their heads off and strove off with success to spend the bucks.

MIRACLE MAN GETS GREAT WELCOME FROM LOYAL FANS

That cheerful clown missed nothing. When the Miracle Man, with his ever-present smile, walked hurriedly along the front of the pavilion he was quickly spotted and given the most whole-hearted welcome that has featured a long course of welcome that started some time late in July. There was a loud of fall in the lovely breeze that snapped across the park from over left field way and was lost in the far corner of the base stand. It was evidently to be a glitzy, festive occasion, but most of the fans turned away.

A loud cheer, a shout, a yell, a wave deflected in the breeze from the top of that tall pole to the sea of fans glinting off the red and white stripes and waving in the breeze. The crowd on the grandstand, however, was not so easily won over. The constant stream always containing the number of the crowd, the crowd was not so easily won over. The crowd was not so easily won over. The crowd was not so easily won over.

Out in left field the new wooden stands, where are to perch the loyal "Royal Rooters" and newly built and old and white pennants of the familiar Lewis League.

FAIR SEX IS PROMINENT IN GRANDSTAND CROWD

Women and girls made up a good part of the early grandstand crowd, bedecked with red and blue ribbons and flaunting the red and blue of the home team. Boys selling bunches of colored buttons and took in unnumbered sums as buttones and other articles and seeing everybody else waving had to join in.

In the left field stand, usual in the Fenway Park, was one.

ent hundred from the corner over the home dugout, waiting for the Braves to start to hold back the slow to start who were to square it.

And now the greatest roar of the crowd came up as Jack Doherty, the Braves' long ball in hand and he tossed himself to plate. But an even greater rise as he landed the first

TERRIFIC STORM OF NOISE AS EVERS MAKES A HIT

Another wild storm of noise as Johnny Evers, Braves' captain, takes his first turn at bat and hammers out a whistling hit to right.

The pavilion is filling up now and every newcomer starts off by giving the Braves a hearty, healthy cheer before sitting down.

Four spectators with hand-made megaphones are singing for the edification of the bleachers in right. That done, the great crowd forces them to go out a bit for the West Coast "fans" attention. The "High Cost of Living" they're singing, just as did the choruses over in Philadelphia before that opening game.

Over back of the left-field bleachers a new building has been lifted up to high enough to be a temporary stand, but there by some thirty persons have taken a hundred fans a chance to watch the action. Five minutes before 1 o'clock the Athletics, with their blue machine, came forth from the runway back of third and with Coughlin in the lead, paraded to the bench. The entire crowd rose and cheered the American champions for fully five minutes—typical Boston reception, and one outlasting anything the "fans" have given the Braves when they came out on Shille Park on Friday.

There was a diversion as a bunch of the crowd that way into the bleachers and the grandstand and the "Coughlins" charged at a wild uproar over the crowd. The crowd was so full of the charge put the rubbers to instant flight.

"FITZY" AND GALLIVAN LEAD LOYAL ROOTERS AROUND PARK

Another cotton was in store for the Braves when they went out to bat and started to hammer the slants or intended slants of veteran Tim Lincecum. No sooner had the noise died down than the strains of the melody of the "Royal Rooters" band were heard over back of first base and even the heads of the Indians and the players of the "Rooters" were seen above the fence at the first base.

When the band usually gave out to some more noise, quite some more. The band was not in the park, which was the case for the "Rooters" boards waiting for the "Rooters" to come out.

There was a waiting to a presentation, beside that auto for a boy has appeared with a basket full of yellow streamers and red carnations and put it down before the Braves have retired to their dressing rooms for the last time before the game for instructions. They do not even bother watching their rivals who are out there making the crowd roar by banging out long lines off Jack Coughlin, once a World's Series hero himself.

Then started the parade of the "Rooters." With "Play" from the crowd, in the fore with Congressman Jimmy Gallivan, they came out in solid phalanx, whatever flung in addition to spick and span revolution costumes.

Just as the roar that greeted them was dying down Captain Johnny Evers led the Braves out for their fielding practice. What had gone before was as the merest whisper to the wild, enthusiastic, victory-hoping roar that burst forth for the idols of Boston. And it kept up as that lightning infield performed its work in brilliant style.

MAYOR CURLEY MAKES SPEECH AND GIVES EVERS A BAT

From left field belted trotted the ex-Mayor Fitzgerald and in the name of the "Royal Rooters" presented Manager Stallings with something or other that seemed to please him a whole lot.

Immediately after, Mayor Curley stepped on the roof of the Braves dugout, behind Johnny Evers, a solid hat and then delivered a speech which it was impossible to hear for the cheering and the music of the "Royal Rooters" band.

Mayor Recites 'Columbus' at City Club Luncheon

Though he may yield the singing palm to former Mayor Fitzgerald and Chief Justice Taft, Mayor James M. Curley entered himself in the elation of the occasion today by reciting Joseph Miller's "Columbus" at the luncheon to Columbus Day guests at the City Club.

He not only recited the stirring poem with its refrain of "Sail on, sail on, sail on," but he made a tremendous success of it, and when he finished there was some considerable commotion of applause throughout the hall.

It was the official Columbus day luncheon, given by Mayor Curley, the City Council and the City Club to the students of Mount Vernon, Minn., and Edward Albert of the Pan-American Union. The guests were the principal speakers, including Boston on the Braves' success. W. T. Fitzgerald presided.

Restricting the return privilege is not a restriction of SERVICE, but a saving of YOUR DOLLARS

It is cheering to note the willingness with which main-store customers have accepted our recent ruling that all merchandise not returned for credit within one week after purchase shall be regarded as sold.

A further stipulation, that all merchandise acceptable for credit must be returned in as good condition as when it left the store, has also appealed to our public's sense of fairness.

These rulings are aimed at the correction of practices which had become quite a burden upon us, and, therefore, upon our customers, since losses due to abuse of the return privilege have naturally been reflected in prices.

All this constitutes one more step in our determination that every purchase made in the Filene store shall represent the greatest possible economy to the purchaser.

NOTE:—The one-week limit does not apply to the Automatic Bargain Basement, where the rule is that merchandise cannot be returned after 48 hours.

took the Braves' and on a 3 to 1 bet against them, putting up $10,000.

Connie Mack, the Athletics' leader, said that the bet was "a little overblown," but he understood the power of the Braves' pitching staff.

"I know, certainly, that they have been pitching great baseball," said Mack. "We didn't expect it from them."

When the Braves' pitchers came to bat, they were not pitching—but not so grand as the Athletics'.

"That I want to say that those men had faith in us at the start should have been enough," Mack said.

the pugacious fan who will go into history as the "Philadelphia ice man" had a season pass to Shibe Park. He was a massive brute, full as big as the giant lumbered child of the Braves and was not as drunk as the other fans. He had a long, pointed tailcoat and tried to knock his bat out before the Braves' pitchers came to bat. When they started a full right swing, which reached the batter's head, he was knocked cold.

"I thought he was knocked cold," Mack said.

Speculators Keep Away from Gates

Thanks to the vigilance of the police there was a noticeable absence of ticket speculators in the vicinity of Fenway Park. Whatever trading the "hawks" did was pulled off on the remote outskirts and with deftness. Police kept their eyes peeled for "phony" pasteboards and the fans were warned against them. Vendors did a land office business.

BLANKETS

Every year along about the middle of October, after they have made their principal deliveries for Fall business, several mills are accustomed to sell us odd lots of fine Blankets, all perfect Blankets—at marked reductions from regular prices. In view of the sharp rise in the price of wool, this sale affords a fine opportunity to save money.

At the prices quoted there is a saving of $2.00, $3.00, and up to $8.00 a pair. And this comparison is with the lowest prices I have seen in the market for lower than today's

The Greatment of All Men

Things into account the persecutions endured by God's saints throughout this Gospel Age, there must be a heavy account on the books of the saints of the past. The Jews, the Pharisees, the Sadducees, the Herodians, the Roman Catholics, the Protestants, the Unitarians, the Quakers, the Methodists, the Baptists, and all other denominations have suffered, and Jesus' words still stand to-day: "I have many more things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now." At least if his followers even a cup of cold water would not fail of a reward, and that injury to one is an injury to all.

Are we asked what are the special sins of our day reprehensible in God's sight? We reply that here, as in Jesus' day, hypocrisy is the greatest sin, and the sin which will bring down the wrath and judgment of various kinds in Jesus' day; yet while denouncing all these in spirit, He has not said that we are to be without sin. Some of the hypocrites of the religious classes of spare-good and safe. They know that these words could not represent history of life in any sense of the words. They see their character more clearly; they perceive that the language of this world are merely political instruments permitted for a time, in the same sense that God permits famine, pestilences, etc., leading for the purpose upon of Mendel's Kingdom to bring in the New Order of things.

But neglecting this knowledge, the Divine character is still blasphemed. The kings of the earth, not during the Iron Ages that they were the sword of the Lord and servants of the church, have not been unadvised. Hence the Char of Russia, the head of the Greek church,

"I Am Jehovah's Sword," Says Kaiser.
 "Remember you (my Arm) are God's elect
 God's spirit has descended on me because I am
 Emperor of Germany. I am Jehovah's sword,
 His representative, the instrument of the Most High. War and death be to those who resist my will! And to all who do not believe my mission and to coward in my army. The enemies

These false doctrines of the dark ages are bearing a terrible heritage to the present war. Similarly the teaching of eternal torment, misrepresenting and blaspheming God's character, are bearing an ill fruitage. Millions of people are being turned away from faith in a God of love and from faith in the Bible as His message by the most monstrous blasphemies of the Dark Ages. I charge the responsibility of all this against the sects and creeds of Christendom. It means that the ministers, whose ears are not open to a deeper comprehension, have neglected the Bible. Have neglected the people, and, instead of bringing them out of the darkness, are now leading them into darkness in an opposite direction—into evolution and higher criticism and everything contrary to the word of God.

The events of the Dark Ages are said to suggest to the human mind outward progress, while inwardly they are baffled. A great friend, a great inspiration, you say? I answer, Yes; the most astounding the world has ever known. Two hundred thousand possessed ministers of Satan and of Christ are standing before the world today telling the legends of the Dark Ages and making to hinder all people from coming to a knowledge of the Truth, notwithstanding the power the people's money and resources. When last such opposition, such headstrong, ungodly, such destruction of the people, each leading of them in darkness, deserve a great punishment, and is it not high, even at the door?

from and sin which constitutes the sinfulness of sin and His gracious provision. Stand for the Bible, the Truth, the God of Love and Wisdom, Justice and Power. "Come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing, and I will receive you."—2 Corinthians 6:17.

PICKING A PITCHER, THIRD GAME PUZZLE—SAYS COBB

STALLINGS HAS BEST OF WACK IN MAKING MOUND START TODAY

By TY COBB,
World's Greatest Ball Player.

Most followers of the present series, that is, the newspaper experts, appeared to be amazed by the fact that the Athletics did not attempt to wait James on in the game Saturday, but instead swung at the ball when they had the count two and nothing or three and one.

I think the Athletics did exactly the right thing—that it was one of the tactics by which they figured to beat the best Boston pitcher, and that they still had faith in the wallop.

In our league when we get the pitcher in the hole we figure that the next ball he pitches will be what we call a "crispie," one with very little stuff on it, because his primary intention is to get the ball over. This always seems to be the one to "pop," and the Athletics have always played this style.

HOW JAMES CROSSED MACKMEN.

Where James crossed them was that he did not offer them any stripped of stuff, and the pitcher supposed to be "crispies" were not what the Athletics expected. He recently saw that Hollister, who played with the Cincinnati for several seasons and who went to the Red Sox, this general style of play in the American League surprised him.

"It strikes me as funny," he told me, "the National League with two and nothing on the batter and three and one, we always get the most ball on."

As I figure it, the one to pitch on is that "crispie," and the Athletics followed the same rule. The big problem that confronts both managers now is the selection of pitchers. It looks as if the Athletics will have a close shave.

How he works as a pitcher, all season he has been using Hollister, James and Tyler in regular order. He may decide to stick to this order.

Selection of Pitchers Puzzle for Both Camps.

But Tyler is accustomed to working with Whitted as his catcher, and it is a cinch that Stallings won't take away that after the first game. He is in the series. Therefore, Tyler would have to start pitcher. He is a strange catcher, which is a handicap to a team, since the battery would not work so smoothly.

Hollister can repeat quickly, and he has demonstrated his ability to hold the Athletics and to use his head and keep his nerve. Stallings must decide to come back with Hollister and if Hollister wins, pitch James tomorrow.

STALLINGS THANKS FANS FOR SUCCESS OF BRAVES

By GEORGE T. STALLINGS, Manager Boston Braves.

When the Boston club returned from its first Western swing it had made a most disastrous trip, and it looked to be sentenced to last place for the present season.

At our first home game we expected to play to empty seats, and to hear nothing but roasts from the few that came out to see us.

However, just the opposite took place. We opened to more than 2,000 people, who received us with applause and encouragement.

At that time I expressed myself that it was the greatest reception ever tendered a ball club, everything considered, and it was the real turning point in our career.

Players Swept Off Their Feet by Big Reception.

The players discussed it for days in our clubhouse. In our little moment it was always brought out. And the players felt that no effort on their part would be too great to materialize the sort of a ball club that was worthy of such a city.

To be greeted in our own city, to be greeted from Philadelphia was a climax to the great effort. The players and myself were simply swept off our feet.

MARANVILLE AND RUDOLPH OPEN WAY FOR SMALL MEN

The great showing made this year by Maranville and Rudolph of the Braves will be a great boon for the diminutive minor league ball players who have little ambition.

Maranville has convinced the baseball world that size is not a necessary asset of a shortstop. Rudolph has demonstrated that a pitcher with a small physique can pitch as well as just as often as a giant.

When Maranville joined the Braves in the latter part of 1912 and the baseball world found that the little fellow's feet were not too far from the only 2 feet 10 inches tall, and weighed only 140 pounds, every one was amazed everywhere.

"Maranville won't last; he's too small," was the cry. But he has proved that he is not only a good shortstop, but a great one. He has made his name as a steady as a rock. He covers more ground than any man who ever has.

YANKEES' START TO SHARE IN SERIES MONEY

By BILL BAILEY.

Isn't it about time that this baseball pendulum swung again? And if it does swing in this war-ridden war of 1914 it will mean the crushing of the Athletics and the elevation of the Boston Braves to the highest pinnacle in baseball.

Mack had a financial interest in the outcome of the series, for he expects to split 25-25 with Jimmy Walsh of the Marks on whatever one share of the Athletics' end of the million amounts to.

Troy Plans Great Reception to Evers

TROY, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Members of Troy Chamber of Commerce, Lodge of Elks, Knights of Columbus, other fraternal organizations, firemen and many citizens here are meeting and formulating plans for a big reception to John J. Evers, a native of this city, captain and second baseman of the Boston Braves, upon his return to his home after the World's Series.

It will be the largest reception ever tendered an individual in the history of the city. There will be a parade, followed by a banquet in the State Armory.

They may have reached their zenith at the same time. If they have, then they will reign for a few years and will be trumped by some other machine the likes of which have been made strong at the same time.

Will the pendulum swing again in 1917? It's about time.

Did you ever study a championship team? Did you ever attempt to figure how a machine that swept everything before it was created?

There is nothing complex about it. A bunch of great ball players reach their highest state of perfection at the same time. That's the answer.

It was so in 1906. It was just so true in 1910. Will it be true in 1917? Remember the Cubs? Chance Evers, Tricker, Steinbock, Schulte, King, Sheppard, all great players, reached the zenith of their career at the same time. Result? An invincible machine.

But that wonderful machine was like the chain that has it weak link. It remained a wonder, during 1907 and 1908. It cracked in his in 1909 and it fell more in 1910. The trouble was that we didn't realize it until the men of Chance went against the Athletics.

Then it went against a machine that has no weak link. Through the same process of evolution, Collins, Harry Baker had reached their zenith of new machine had been created.

See, why shouldn't our pendulum swing again in 1917? Time makes its answer.

Why shouldn't the Braves come? It's a young team. Its aggregate age is the smallest in the National League if not in baseball. The machine is composed of good ball players who may have become great. It's possible that these youngsters have been hoisted as the Cubs were in 1906, as the Athletics were in 1910.

MANAGERS MAY COPY STALLINGS' METHOD

It's quite likely that many of the big league managers will adopt the Stallings method of varying the attack according to what sort of a pitcher is working for the opposition.

Stallings has five regular outfielders—Whitted, Connelly, Moran and Shain. And yet, only one of the five can be counted as a regular. That's Whitted. He's the regular center fielder and holds down the job no matter whether the opposition play a left handed or a right handed pitcher.

If the other side uses a right handed pitcher Stallings uses Moran, Connelly and Whitted. If a southpaw comes against the Braves, Stallings makes an immediate shift, replacing Connelly and Moran, who are left-handed hitters, with Shain and Cabbie, who bat from the other side of the plate.

PLAN STALLING AT.

When Stallings first introduced the plan the other managers scoffed at it. During the early part of the season it didn't seem to work out to great advantage. Some thought it was because the idea was at fault, and it wasn't. It was because Stallings didn't have exactly the right kind of pitcher in his line-up.

When he secured Cabbie and Whitted from St. Louis and later got Moran from Cincinnati he had the right combination.

Stallings' success since then attracted the attention of all the other big league managers. Those who were prone to scoff at first changed their minds and copied Stallings' plan, and they discovered the results very beneficial to the Braves.

PITCHING THREE A SUCCESS.

It is probable, too, that some of the managers will adopt the other Stallings innovation—that of using only three regular pitchers. Instead of four, as was the universal custom for many years until Stallings came along and established the precedent.

Stallings, when putting his every-day pitching scheme into operation, and that he was sure that it wouldn't harm the pitchers. He said that working a pitcher every third day would keep his arm in better shape than working him only every fourth day. Other managers have copied this plan. It would wreck the pitcher's arm.

Did it?

CONNELLY A NEWCOMER.

Connelly, the Boston slugger, is a newcomer in the ranks of batting stars, but from his work during the past season it looks as if he will continue to be among those present for many seasons to come. He's just a kid, in years and experience, and has many years of usefulness before him.

Connelly has a fine and easy swing that is carried along by a pair of powerful shoulders. He has a fine eye and times his swing with perfection. His drives are hard and on a line, with nothing flimsy about them.

Fowler Appointed Princeton Coach

Bob Fowler, the veteran Cambridge Marathon runner, has been appointed coach for the Princeton cross-country team. Trainer Enoch Fitzpatrick has been busy with the football team and has not had much time to devote to track athletics, and the acquisition of Fowler as trainer and coach of the runners was raised at a meeting of the athletic board held recently.

Fowler will leave for Princeton at once to take immediate charge of the Princeton cross-country candidates. He will be with the team until the close of the cross-country season.

Amateur Baseball Team in Title Games

CLEVELAND, Oct. 12.—The Cleveland team for the amateur baseball championship will be played next Sunday in Chicago, the local champions and the Butler Brothers' team of Chicago breaking even in a double-header. The first game was easy for the visitors, 11 to 1.

The Yelling-Strollers braced in the second contest, however, and when the game was tied in the eighth on account of darkness the locals were ahead, 4 to 1.

At the start of the game Connie Mack traded Walter to Frank Chance for Dabey, whom he had sold to the Yankees during the winter. Mack had a financial interest in the outcome of the series, for he expects to split 25-25 with Jimmy Walsh of the Marks on whatever one share of the Athletics' end of the million amounts to.

Boundless was looking back; his eyes were shining deeper under a heavier frown. The duty being to get information, he was gaining none. The duty being to keep the "Grays" secrets, there was a lack of information in his own department. He quizzed subordinates; he made short confessions, to his usual.

Memoirs, the Grays were taking the approaches to the main line of defense, which had been thought relatively invulnerable but had been found already placed and their value, therefore, annihilated. The thought of bettering themselves, there came a feeling of excitement, the feeling of truth to live living near a real danger.

Civilizing Cherry

By STELLA FLORES

In her dainty white and gold room sat Cherry, a crumpled, discomfited little thing.

Revolvingly turning her back to the crescent moon, she panned a letter to her mother. A little cry fell from her lips. The mortgage on their home was going to be foreclosed. Could she do nothing to prevent it? Suddenly she brushed away her tears, and her eyes sparkled. She was a "Passe," and every "Passe" could dance. There was one thing possible to save the old home.

The next morning Cherry stooped on her way home from the dressmakers' to make a call. She went to the office of a famous theatrical manager. When the great man looked up he gave an exclamation of rage, that trailed off into a note of wonder.

For the girl who had slipped past in a quipped-off letter was the loveliest creature he had ever seen. "I want to be a dancer, and earn a lot of money," she explained, "and in the midst of it, I want to be a dancer, and earn a lot of money."

He heart gave a quick pang as he thought of her exposed to the glare of publicity. Then his sternness asserted itself. "Come here to-morrow at eleven sharp," he said.

Thinking It Over

Worst Idea Is to Get Action in the "Buy-a-Bale" Movement, in Politics or in Anything Else

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

Mr. Harry Lee Taft of Chicago, one of the firm of Pearson & Taft, bankers, of La Salle street, has written an article on the cotton situation in the South.

He says:

In this emergency Mr. Hearst promptly originated and promulgated his "Buy-a-Bale" movement. There was a tendency to belittle this idea in certain parts of the country, but the fact remains that the South considers that his idea resulted in the formation of their first line of resistance, and due largely to that movement and its attendant correlated plans the price was rapidly advanced from 8 1/2 cents to its present level upward of 9 cents. On a 15,000,000-bale crop, this means approximately $100,000,000, and that is not an item in any sense to be belittled.

The "Buy-a-Bale" movement pointed out the first way to enable the planter to hold the crop until the price offered was acceptable.

It is a fact, as Mr. Taft points out, that the "Buy-a-Bale" movement has produced results. That is because the movement had energy and ACTION back of it.

An old story, but interesting, is Mr. Taft's comment, concerning the Hearst plan, that "there was a tendency to belittle this idea in certain parts of the country."

W. R. Hearst, and others, who try to get anything DONE, are quite familiar with the "tendency to belittle the idea."

When in various cities W. R. Hearst started to reduce the price of gas there was a decided tendency to belittle that idea. But the price of gas went down in more places than one.

When for years W. R. Hearst, through his newspapers, demanded the establishment of parcel post, speaking for it personally in Congress, and writing for it in his newspapers, there was a very decided tendency to belittle that idea—especially in the express company offices.

Today, when Mr. Hearst and his newspapers advocate and demand Government Ownership of railroads, with honest management and efficient service, there is a very enthusiastic attempt to belittle that idea in many circles—especially the circles that make a business of printing railroad securities and find it hard to sell them.

But, in spite of the belittling tendency, the idea will go through.

The great thing in this world is to get ACTION. The ordinary man talks well, but he does not know how to make the talk take the form of accomplishment.

The satisfaction that men feel in their work is the satisfaction of something done.

Thousands of men are helping with the "Buy-a-Bale" movement—and they are the life of that movement.

Action is the thing in politics, in business, in reform, counteracting the evil effects of war.

"Audacity, more audacity, always audacity," was a big Frenchman's definition of success.

Audacity is good, it creates the new thought.

ACTION IS ESSENTIAL, IT MAKES THE THOUGHT REAL.

"Hail! Hail! The GANG Is Coming Back!"

Only Heart Cry of Recent Republican Convention, Declares Charles Sumner Bird, in Branding McCall as Stand-Patter.

Mr. Charles Sumner Bird gained a reputation for sensible talking as the Progressive candidate for Governor during the last two State campaigns. He has now opened the present campaign quite as effectively for Mr. Joseph Walker, the present Progressive standard bearer.

In his speech at Worcester the other evening Mr. Bird very keenly dissected Samuel W. McCall's public record. He said with great truth:

"A vote for McCall will be construed as a vote of confidence in the stand-pat policy of the Republican party and in the reactionary leaders who wrecked it."

Mr. Bird deals with the alleged McCall independence in politics thus:

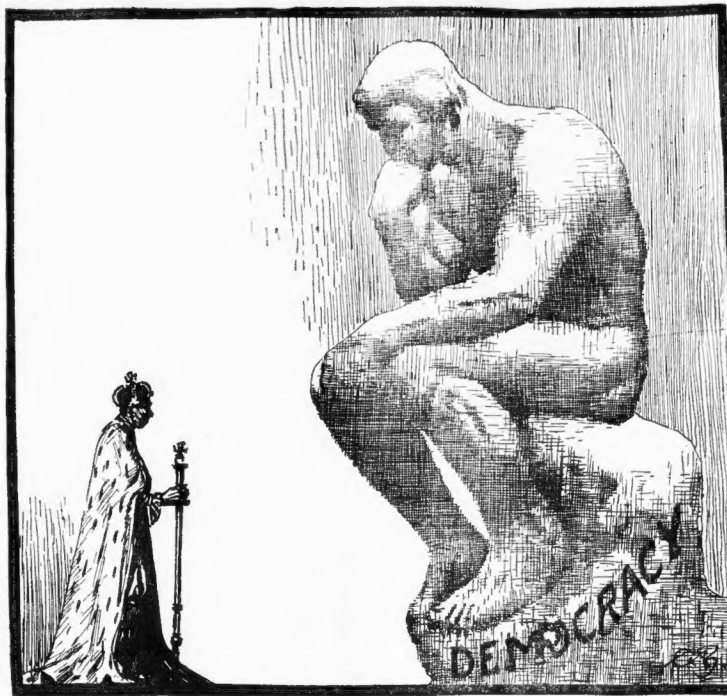

"McCall's independence has been conspicuous on those rare occasions when the Republican party has shown tendencies to depart from its stand-pat attitude. He has exhibited his independence by opposing his party when conservative and reactionary measures were in danger."

Mr. Bird might have added that Ex-Congressman McCall voted AGAINST his party whenever his party had the sense to support reforms which were opposed by the great special interests. Mr. McCall was one of the seven lone Congressmen, out of 400, who voted AGAINST the Roosevelt bill increasing the power of the government to regulate the railroads. THIS is the man whom the Republicans propose to put at the head of the State during the hour of trial, when we are beset on every hand with difficult railroad problems!

The Republican platform and Mr. McCall's speech at the convention are perfectly consistent with Mr. McCall's railroad record in Congress. About all that the Republican platform says, and about all Mr. McCall uttered in his speech, was some primitive twaddle about the sacredness of private property. And we well know that the Republican stand-pat idea of the sacredness of private property is the right of a PRIVILEGED FEW to plunder the property of the general public.

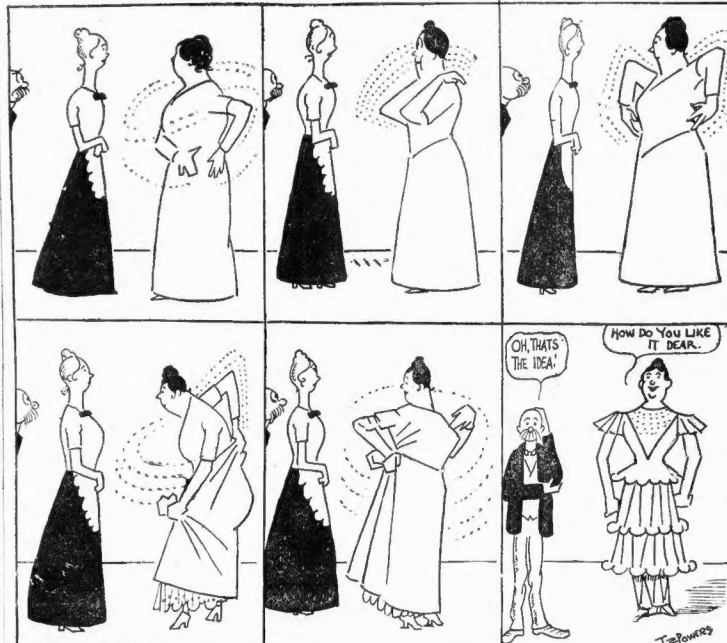

It would require little imagination to picture the state of

By looking at the last picture you can see for yourself that Mrs. Bungalow's pantomime was a full and accurate description of the new dress, and one that any woman could understand.

Only thing that now puzzles us is how Mr. Powers got all this inside dope.

The Fatal Early Marriage

A Boy Who Marries Before He Knows What Kind of a Man He Is Going to Be Commits a Crime Against Himself and Against the Girl He Marries For Which There Is No Forgiveness

A BOY, who says he is eighteen years old and getting twice dollars a week salary, writes me that he is desperately in love with a girl of seventeen, and that they want to marry. And he wants to know what I think of it.

What do I think of it? Son, when there are so many ways and convenient ways of committing suicide, such as taking rough on rats and getting in front of a trolley car, why do you choose such a horrible and lingering, and torturing way of exterminating yourself as an early marriage? Just take it from me that if you get married at eighteen you will never regret it but once, and that will be every day that you live.

A boy that marries before he knows what kind of a man he is going to be, and what kind of needs and desires he is going to have as a man, commits a crime against himself and against the girl he marries for which there is no forgiveness here or hereafter. He foredooms them both to failure and misery, and anyone who has got little enough sense to even contemplate doing such a thing should be locked up by the State in a nice padded cell until he recovers his sanity.

Soon, matrimony is a man's alibi trouble with which an child has no strength to wrestle. Wait until you get grown up before you tackle it.

And listen to these words of wisdom from a judge who has had much experience in adjudicating the difficulties between married couples. He says:

What a Judge Says

I find that it is youthful marriages more than anything else that fill my court. Very young couples seldom have enough money to live upon, and quarrels begin when the young husband finds that it is difficult to support his little family. Blows and black eyes follow.

Financial matters, however, are not the only cause of disagreement between couples who marry at tender ages. There are dissensions among rich young couples as well as poor ones. If it is about money, it is about something else. They are not old enough nor wise enough to have patience with each other's faults.

I wish that these words of warning might be printed in letters a foot high upon every signboard in the country, so that they might always be before the eyes of girls and boys who have reached the call love state of existence where they are apt to mistake a passing fancy for an eternal passion, and wreck their lives in consequence.

Marriage is risky enough, heaven knows, at the best, when people are old enough and mature enough to know what they are doing, but for the young and callow it means inevitable disaster. A couple who marry before they are twenty take a long shot at happiness, and it is nothing but pure luck if they win out.

There are many reasons why the early marriage is preordained to failure. The first and most practical is that matrimony, like any other venture, has to be adequately financed to be a success. No boy is able to earn enough to support a family in decent comfort, and when income and cold begin to pinch, and the bill collector to hammer on the door, how much up his grip and beat it away from that abode.

The second reason why early marriages are failures is that the boy and his girl wife have not had their fling. They still crave the pleasures and amusements that belong to their years, and when instead of dancing and frolicking they have to walk creaky babies, and toil to ex- hause to take care of a family, they are dead sure to quarrel with each other with hatred and re-formation.

The third objection to early marriages is that youth is unreason-able in its demands. It is self- ish, and tyrannical, and over- bearing, and both husband and wife demand too much of each other. Hence quarrels, and jealousy, and unreasonableness, and to deal diplomatically with situations that youth treats with brutal and fatal directness.

The fourth reason why early marriages are almost sure to bring misery instead of happiness to those who contract them is that no boy's or girl's character is formed at eighteen and twenty- eight or later tastes are no more the same than if we were different persons, and the man or woman we fancied ourselves in love with in our salad days will so with weariness and repulsion when we have reached maturity.

There are foolish, sentimental-ists who advocate early marriage on the ground that the young couple will grow up together. This is a fallacious hope, for not one time in a thousand does it happen that a boy and girl develop along the same line. Either the husband outgrows the wife, or the wife outgrows the husband, and there is left that hideous death-in-life matrimony where the superior one must ever drag about with him or her the corpse of love.

It is true that not all youthful marriages end in failure. But un- fortunately all end in estrangement. If you will look about among your acquaintances you will find that in almost every case where the hus- band is openly or secretly in-ful to his wife, or where the wife cares more for the admiration of other men than she should, or where the couple are frankly weary of each other, that they married young.

"Hail! Hail! The GANG Is Coming Back!"

things with Mr. McCall at the head of the State government. The OLD GANG of lobbyists would be thronging the State House corridors again. The railroad lawyer's word once more would be law before the legislative committees. Every legislative and administrative facility would be given the railroads to transfer the consequences of their own misconduct from their own over upon the shoulders of the general public. Railroad rates and freight would go up, train service would go down, not only without a protest, but with the active aid of a government which ought to protect the public.

To place a man of Mr. McCall's notorious railroad record in the office of Governor would be a notice to the world that the people of this State enjoy being robbed or are without sufficient intelligence to protect themselves against those who would rob them.

At the Republican convention Senator Lodge sounded the keynote, Calvin Coolidge presented the platform and Mr. McCall was made its chief expounder. IF WITHIN THE FOUR CORNERS OF MASSACHUSETTS THERE CAN BE FOUND MORE EXTREME REACTIONARIES THAN THESE THREE MEN, THE PUBLIC WILL BE SURPRISED. They have each within their respective spheres been the worst example of that stand-pat-ism which the country so overwhelmingly repudiated at the last national election, and which received the endorsement of only three of the smallest States in the Union.

Such leaders have no more hope of persuading the Progressive voters of this Commonwealth to return to a party whose hands, than the old Cotton Whigs, before the Civil War, could have to bring the Conscience Whigs, the Free Soilers and the young Republicans back to the old soulless Whig organization.

Mr. Bird is right when he says that the only heart cry of the recent Republican convention was: "HAIL, HAIL, THE GANG IS COMING BACK!"
